In pairs, one student asks their partner questions about the Grand hotel and completes missing information in a table on their worksheet with the answers. When the student has completed all the information, their partner asks questions about the Hilton hotel. Finally, students say which hotel they like the most and why. Here is a free holiday plans information gap activity to help teach students how to ask and answer questions about future holiday arrangements. In pairs, students complete missing information about four people's holiday plans by asking and answering questions with be going to and the present continuous. Afterwards, students compare worksheets to check their answers. Lastly, students use the same questions to ask about their partner's holiday plans. In this holiday conversation questions activity, students complete conversation questions about holidays with question words and then use the questions to interview a partner. First, students use question words in a box on the worksheet to complete a set of holiday conversation questions. Students then take it in turns to ask the holiday conversation questions to a partner. Students note down their partner's answers and ask follow-up questions to gain more information. When everyone has finished, students give feedback to the class on what they found out about their partner. Each holiday honors a person or event that had a lasting influence on our nation. Federal holidays like the Fourth of July are patriotic. Some holidays originated outside the United States but are enjoyed by Americans of all origins. The holiday material on this civics website includes photo lessons, worksheets, crossword puzzles, PowerPoint presentations, videos, and more.
